THE BROKERAGE FOR DREAMS

Life Long Learners | Retiree Dreamers

Don't Let Another Year Pass You By Without Achieving Your Life Long Dreams.

Let's face it—age really is just a number. Being a retiree or near retirement age is an opportunity to finally pursue and achieve your dreams once and for all.

If you have had enough of putting your educational and career dreams aside year after year, J. S. Bullock Associates, LLC | The Dream Brokerage™ would like to do its part by equipping you with the skills to overcome at least two recognized barriers that many with your experience face. These are the lack of confidence to enter college or a new career at this stage in your life, and the access to educational programs and professional opportunities.

In less than 20 years, more than 70 million people will be over the age of 65 in the United States.¹ This is significant because unlike previous decades, the number of people nearing retirement age that are still working beyond 65 has dramatically increased. The population of older citizens who work full-time nearly doubled from 1995 to 2007, with the number of employed men over 65 rising to 75 percent, and employment among women the same age increasing by nearly twice as much, at 147 percent.²

Some of the major hurdles retirees and those nearing retirement age face in today's workforce, however, are issues such as age discrimination, educational disadvantages, and keeping up with current technological advancements.

Thus, it comes at no surprise that adult learners overall make up nearly 40 percent of all postsecondary learners. About 55 percent of adult learners 40 years of age and older are likely to attend a four-year college. In fact, from 2009 to 2011, 1 out of every 3 adult learners over age 40 who decided to pursue a college degree were full-time students.³ So you see, it is indeed possible to fulfill your life long dreams as long as you don't let age stop you! If so, JSBA is willing to help you.

WOMEN & GIRL DREAMERS

*Standing Out Doesn't Mean Anything,
If You Don't Know Your Worth...*

J. S. BULLOCK

THE BROKERAGE FOR DREAMS

Self-Worth Achievers | Women & Girl Dreamers

Standing Out Doesn't Mean Anything If You Don't Know Your Worth.

Glass ceilings are broken everyday by women and girls around the world. Whether you are a female high school senior, a single mother, an aspiring woman business owner, a female veteran, or a grandmother, we can all agree that there are more opportunities today than in decades past.¹

J. S. Bullock & Associates, LLC | The Brokerage for Dreams™ would like to do its part by equipping you with the skills to overcome at least two recognized barriers that many with your experience face. These are the lack of knowledge about, and access to, educational and professional programs and opportunities that build your self-confidence and self-worth in today's world.

Today, women and girls are attending college and the workforce in record numbers. In 2010 nearly 67 percent of women in the civilian labor force 25 to 64 years of age have at least some college education.² Women now outnumber men in college, and are more likely to earn a bachelors degree. Even within the U.S. military where women make up less than 10 percent, women represent almost 30 percent of all military undergraduates.³

Also, it is estimated that over 10 million businesses are owned by women, and women have nearly doubled their share of patents in the past twenty years.⁴

Washington, DC: NBWC, Inc. 5 United States Bureau of Labor Statistics. 2011. "Highlights of Women's Earnings in 2010". (Report 1031). Washington, DC: United States Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Within certain fields, occupations, and institutions, however, women still experience unique obstacles and hardships that delay or prevent their advancement. Despite the rising number of women entering college, earning advanced degrees, and attaining key professional positions, reportedly females still only make about $0.81 cents to every $1.00 made by their male counterparts.⁵

What we do know is that with increasing educational attainment, supportive networks, and professional resources, women's participation in the labor force rises and the playing field begins to level.

UNDERREPRESENTED DREAMERS

You've Already Got What It Takes To Pioneer, Persevere, and Achieve Your Dreams...

J. S. BULLOCK
& ASSOCIATES, LLC
THE BROKERAGE FOR DREAMS

Pioneer Achievers | Underrepresented Dreamers

You've Already Got What It Takes To Pioneer, Persevere, And Achieve Your Dreams...

Though life can seem a struggle at times, always remember you are not alone. Anything is possible despite whether you're the first generation in your family to pursue college or graduate school, or whether your gender is underrepresented in the career field you wish to pursue, or even if you feel delayed in accomplishing your goals due to a lack of financial means.

J. S. Bullock & Associates, LLC | The Brokerage for Dreams™ would like to do its part by equipping you with the skills to overcome at least two recognized barriers that many with your experience face. These are the lack of knowledge about and access to educational and professional programs and opportunities that build your self-confidence toward attending college, finding a better job, or perhaps opening your own business.

Nearly one-third of today's college population is made up of underrepresented groups, which include racial and ethnic minorities, first-generation, low-income, and women. Within the next 10 years, the minority and Hispanic/Latino workforce is projected to double and nearly triple respectively.¹

In less than a decade, however, the number of jobs that will require a graduate degree is estimated to grow by 2.5 million, of which those jobs requiring a PhD are projected to increase by almost

20 percent.² In 2010 about 1 in 18 workers in the U.S. were in science, technology, engineering, or math (STEM) fields, and these occupations are projected to grow nearly twice as non-STEM occupations.³

Unfortunately, underrepresented groups still face unique challenges. An estimated 3 out of 4 first-generation students who attend college do not receive a bachelor's degree within eight years after completing high school.⁴ Racial and ethnic minorities and females are also highly underrepresented in STEM fields.⁵ For these reasons and more, JSBA exists to help you achieve your goals and dreams.

Educational Believers | International Dreamers

An International Brokerage to Help You Over Land And Water Toward Your Dreams.

The dream of becoming a successful international student or employee in the United States requires more than just good grades, high test scores, or a work visa. It also takes a lot of determination.

J. S. Bullock & Associates, LLC | The Brokerage for Dreams™ would like to do its' part by equipping you with the skills to overcome several recognized barriers that many with your experience face. These are the lack of knowledge about, and access to, educational and professional programs and opportunities. This includes culturally-sensitive services to assist you in your transition to education and life in the United States.

For decades, U.S. colleges and employers have welcomed international populations to come study or work, making it among one of the leading destinations in the world. In fact, the growth in the total number of international students studying in the U.S. has steadily increased, with over 30 percent more studying now than ten years ago.¹

In the same time period, the health field alone has seen dramatic increases with 1 out of 4 doctors and 15 percent of health workers being foreign born.² Within science, business, and engineering, more than half of the scientists and engineers in the U.S. who hold a doctorate degree came from international destinations.³

Furthermore, among all institutions in the states, international students only make up 4 percent of college enrollment.⁴ As you can see, this leaves considerable room and opportunity for you to study at a U.S. institution or to gain valuable skills to work for a quality U.S. company.

Despite the increasing enrollments, however, 70 percent must still depend on personal and family finances to support their education.⁵ Together, these things and more have a profound impact on the success of international populations studying and/or working here. Here at J. S. We understand that getting into an accredited university or getting hired to work in a career in your field in the United States can be quite difficult given the competition with students and workers that already live in the states.

For example, knowing the critical components to include in your college, scholarship, or work applications, and how to present them can seem very confusing. In addition, understanding the cultural differences in transitioning to life in the states is further complicated because English may be the second, third, and further language from your native tongue. JSBA can help you overcome these challenges and more, and the great part, is that we can also come to you!

You've Thought Outside The Box To Serve Your Country, Now It's Time To Serve Your Dreams.

You are brave and willing to sacrifice your life by serving our country, but it does not mean you need to sacrifice the goals and dreams you still have for your life during or after military service.

If you are a current or former member of the Armed Forces and have an educational and career dream, J. S. Bullock & Associates, LLC | The Brokerage for Dreams™ would like to do its part by equipping you with the skills to overcome at least two recognized barriers that many with your experience face.

These barriers are often the lack of confidence and knowledge about, and access to, educational programs and professional opportunities, and the motivation to transition from military to civilian life as a returning student or as a working professional.

Today, over 40 percent of military women and men pursue their associate's and bachelor's degrees, and 1 out of 4 military undergraduates attend a four-year public university.¹ Among these individuals, 75 percent are veterans.²

Clearly, military personnel around the world are taking advantage of the educational opportunities that exist for them. With the introduction of the new GI Bill, an increasing number of institutions are providing more and more financial and tuition assistance to veterans and military students than ever before.³

Despite these advances, however, many veterans and military members are unfamiliar how to benefit from these opportunities. Sometimes it just involves needing the extra help to prepare application materials. Approximately 2 out of 3 veterans report that the greatest challenge in their transition to civilian life is finding employment.⁴ The perception of a lack of appreciation for their skills and training learned while in the military inhibits their confidence in pursuing a career or degree they find meaningful. For this reason, J. S. Bullock & Associates, LLC stands ready and willing to help.

Become A Statistic... For All The Right Reasons...

Just because you make a wrong, does not mean you cannot make things right. If you have been previously incarcerated, and/or have a criminal record for minor offenses that do not include sexual or violent misconduct, but are finding it to be difficult to achieve your educational and career dreams, there may be some hope.

J. S. Bullock & Associates, LLC | The Brokerage for Dreams™ would like to do its part by equipping you with the skills to overcome at least two recognized barriers that many with your experience face. These are the lack of confidence and knowledge about, and access to, educational programs and professional opportunities that help inspire you to not give up on who you are and who you can become.

Currently, the United States has the highest incarceration rate in the world. Within 3 years after being released nearly two-thirds of individuals return back to prison, many of which are due to parole violations.^{1,2} An estimated 9 out of 10 parole violators are unemployed, and depending on their educational attainment, nearly 40 percent of prisoners are unemployed just prior to being incarcerated.³ Less than a decade ago, it cost some states 5 times more to incarcerate inmates, than to educate them.⁴

Today, college courses are offered to inmates at 35 percent of prisons in the United States. Education is one of the most important tools to curb repeat offenses, as well as, securing meaningful employment. Research shows that inmates who participate in correctional programs that focus on postsecondary education highly reduce recidivism rates by more than half. Education creates a clear win-win not only for society, but also for incarcerated dreamers who want a second chance.

However, more needs to be done to continue to motivate, inspire, and encourage formerly incarcerated dreamers, perhaps like you. JSBA offers educational and professional services to former inmates who wish to earn a college degree or pursue a job that they find meaningful. We start by motivating and inspiring you to improve your leadership and worth in your families and in your communities once you re-enter society.

ATTENTION: DREAMERS WITH DISABILITIES

We are currently working on creating brochure materials sensitive to the needs of individuals with physical disabilities and visual impairment. Please contact J. S. Bullock & Associates, LLCTM if you or someone you know would like to collaborate with us on this important task, including outreach efforts.

Although we do not have the materials finalized at this time, all are welcome to our workshops and programs. At no additional charge, we will make the appropriate arrangements to make sure our facilities and personnel are equipped in meeting your needs so that you and/or your loved one(s) can fully participate.
